MANCHESTER AND VICINITY.

Sudden Death of a Worthy and Respected Citizen.—Shortly after 11 o'clock yester-the luxury that wealth can give. But they day morning our community was startled were widely different in their behavior. by the announcement of the sudden death The first dwelt upon the fact that the house of Mr. Conrad Wagner, better known as was in an out-of-the-way spot, and that "Coon" Wagner. The sad event occurred about the hour mentioned above, at his residence, ou Fifteenth street, west. Mr. Wagner had been indisposed for several was in an out-delice-way spot, and that there were few or no neighbors. At table he told of the delicious tea he had drank at the house of one friend, of the rich tea-service that he had seen days, and suffered greatly from sleepless- upon the table of another, of the rare old ness. Monday night he partook of an china that was used in his own household, oplate, in hopes of resting better. Yes- and of the dainty meals he had eaten from terday morning after awakening he was it. In the cramped little sitting room, after seized with convulsions, which lasted, with tea, he sat by the stove and talked of the but slight intermissions, until death relieved | delights of an open wood-fire, of his enjoy-his sufferings. Mr. Wagner was a Marylander by birth, but had resided in this city for many years, and was employed as a puddler on Belle and could not possess. When he had gone Island. His second wife, a Miss Brown, it was clear, although nothing was said, that died several years ago, leaving two chil-dren, both of whom the bereaved father folhis visit had caused pain; that it had made the wife feel her straitened circumstances lowed to the grave very recently. By his more keenly than ever, and cast a shadow first wife, a Miss Gibbons, he leaves an in- over her husband's thoughts. The next teresting daughter nearly grown. He leaves evening came the other visitor. He brought two brothers-both employed on Belle Island, and among our most respected citizens. The deceased was a man of industry, his walk, which, he added, was just the thing to give a man a good apgenerous impulses, of a genial disposition. and popular with all of his associates and acquaintances. He was a member of an Odd-Fellows' Lodge in Maryland, to the officers of which his brothers telegraphed yesterday.

The Post-Office-A Great Inconvenience. There is considerable complaint at the late hour at which the first mail is received in and told his hostess, who was all smiles and Manchester. It is about 12 o'clock M. by the time it is ready for delivery. Of course no blame attaches to Postmaster Beattie, as he has to be guided by the railroad schedules. The northern mail is not received in Richmond until about 11:30, and if our mail were received earlier it would only be local in its character. It is a serious inconvenience for business-men to wait so long for their morning mail, but as the situation is at present it must be borne, unless our people can get the authorities to allow a special mail from Richmond to be ready for delivery not later than 9 o'clock A. M.

A Noted Character Dead .- Although the penitentiary is not situated at a great distance from Manchester, communication between the two places is not very speedy or frequent. It may not therefore be generally known that Peyton Spurlock (colored), who killed Mr. Charles Severance on Christmaseve night, 1873, is dead. Spurlock was convicted of murder in the second degree and room, study, and nursery all being at the sent to the penitentiary for eighteen years. He died of consumption in that institution Christmas-eve night, 1877-exactly four years to the day from the period of the commission of the crime for which he was incarcerated.

The New Buildings .- Work is progressing very favorably on the handsome brick residences of Messrs. Samuel C. Taylor, James W. Archer, and James S. Robertson, heretofore noticed in these columns. At Greenesville, on the northeastern border of the city and beyond Baconsville, Mr. George T. Green is erecting a neat frame building for Mr. John H. Talley. When completed this will be quite an improvement to this growing section of Manchester.

Religious Services .- Rev. Dr. Hatcher preached to a large congregation at the Bapthe meeting seems to be increasing, and Europe. The River- View Road .- As special commissioner appointed by Judge Clopton, of the County Court, County-Surveyor Joseph E. Laprade on Monday viewed the River-View road, and took into consideration certain alterations and improvements proposed by the land-owners along the route of the road. The result of the observations will be made in a report to be submitted at the December term of the County Court of railroad will extend its line at least fifty Chesterfield.

A Deserved Compliment .- Miss Kate Richardson, of this city, has been made the recipient of a handsome Bible, the voluntary offering of her class at the Baptist Sabbath school. Miss Richardson has been connected with this Sabbath school for a number of years, and is deservedly popular with the officers, teachers, and scholars thereof.

The Courts .- After transacting unimportant civil business and signing the orders, Judge Clopton vesterday adjourned the Hustings Court over until December 16th. Mayor Clarke had no cases of importance before him yesterday.

The Sons of Temperance .- Manchester Division, Sons of Temperance, had an interesting meeting at Odd-Fellows' Hall Monday night. The attendance was good. Four candidates were initiated, and several propositions for membership received. The is a bad regimen. You might as well think new Division is in good condition, and its to rear flowers in frost as to educate people members intend to labor in and out of season for the good cause.

The Work on the Streets .- Monday and Saturday the work on Bridge avenue was delayed for want of sand, and yesterday on account of the bad weather. Only a few hours' work is now needed to complete the laying of the sidewalk to its terminus at Perry street. Yesterday the work of grading lower Hull street was commenced. On this street the sidewalk will be repaired on both sides of the street.

The great decline of religion in Cincinnati is just now being discussed by the clergy of that city and the religious press. Statistics show that but a very small percentage of the population attend churches, while all classes of Sunday amusements flourish and draw crowded houses. Commenting upon this state of affairs, the correspondent of the New York Christian Union says: "It is my humble opinion that we awe more to Moncure D. Conway than to any other one influence for the spiritual stagnation which seems to affect so large a proportion of the church-members, if not also the ministers, of this city. By his preaching while in this city, but more by his correspondmercial, he has exerted a very potent influence against all accepted religious opinion and frue spiritual life. By his acknow-ledged ability he has commanded the attention of the most intelligent class of readers, and by his subtle, persevering, and repeated attacks upon Christianity, he has exerted a ""Where do our sponges come from?" powerful influence, destroying the faith and No matter about that, Let us rather devise religious activity of thousands."
